Guidelines to use the Cumulative Record

The clinical record is a teaching aid, is prepared as per the syllabus of NTR University of Health Sciences, Vijayawada, Andhra Pradesh, 7th Publication (July 2012 -2013). This record would provide the information regarding the practical experience gained by the student nurse under strict clinical supervision during the course.

The clinical supervisor/teacher will give instruction about purposes of procedure, steps to be carried out during the procedure, care of the equipment after the procedure and demonstrate the procedure in lab. After return demonstration in both lab and in clinical area satisfactorily, the student is allowed to carry out the procedures independently in clinical settings. It ensures that the nursing procedures learnt systematically by the student during training. Academic year wise the procedures that are learnt by the student in all the specialities, are listed out. Entries has to be made immediately after the procedure with due care. The student should show keen interest voluntarily and obtain signature from the clinical supervisor. Concurrent evaluation is performed to assess the clinical performance of the student. The Cumulative Record will be submitted to the University Examiners at the time of final practical examination of each subject, for scrutiny.
